

First Aid Certification training (Renewal) (online)

The Labour Act, 2007 (Act No. 11 of 2007) regulates workplace health, safety, and welfare in Namibia. Under this legislation, employers are legally obligated to provide a safe working environment, which includes maintaining adequate first aid facilities and trained personnel to manage workplace injuries and emergencies.

This face-to-face training session is designed to equip you with the practical skills and theoretical knowledge required to fulfill these statutory requirements. By the end of this course, you will be able to confidently administer life-saving interventions, minimize workplace hazards, and ensure your organization remains compliant with national occupational health and safety standards.

The Labour Act, 2007 (Act No. 11 of 2007) regulates workplace health, safety, and welfare in Namibia. Under this legislation, employers must provide a safe working environment, including adequate first aid facilities and trained personnel. This face-to-face training equips you with practical skills to meet these statutory duties and manage urgent workplace emergencies.

In Namibia, unique environmental and industrial factors demand specialized first aid readiness. This course focuses on critical regional hazards, including:

- Mining & Heavy Industry: Crushing injuries, hazardous chemical exposure, and heavy machinery trauma.
- Agriculture & Wildlife: Severe lacerations from farm tools, snakebites, and heatstroke in arid regions.
- Construction: Falls from heights, scaffolding collapses, and impact injuries.
- Logistics & Transport: High-impact road accident trauma across long-distance transit routes.

By mastering these life-saving interventions, you ensure compliance with Act 11 of 2007 and safeguard your workforce.
